The Chittenden County art exhibit is celebrating its 25th Anniversary by opening "Impressions of the Four Seasons" on October 1st running until November 30th. Marilene Luxton-Jones is the owner of this gallery. Marilene Luxton-Jones was originally from the Netherlands. She studied language at university of Utrecht in Holland; while already speaking Italian as a primary language. After collage she changed her career and became a sales director at graduate school. She moved to Manhattan in 1997 with her newly wedded husband. Two years after, due to her husband's job they moved to Huston, Texas. Marilene began working in the finer arts as a hobby making frames. After a long time of doing this she made it a priority in her life turning it into her own business. Later on in life she deiced to move to Vermont alone to further continue her passion in the finer arts. In the year of 1986 she created the Luxton-Jones Gallery in the Shelburne home.

The Gallery "Impressions of the Four Seasons" is a tribute toward Marilene Luxton-Jones who loves the changing seasons in Vermont, and in her native homeland of the Netherlands. The history of the exhibit dates back to 1980 from its original home in Houston Texas.
